HHS Office and Location: Two fellowship opportunities are currently available with Office of Science and Data Policy within the Assistant Secretary for Planning and Evaluation (ASPE) at the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (DHHS) located in Washington, DC.

Research Project: ASPE advises the HHS Secretary on policy development, leads special initiatives, coordinates the Department's evaluation, research and demonstration activities, and manages cross-Department planning activities such as strategic planning, legislative planning, and review of regulations.

The selected fellow would be mentored by a team of policy, public health, and economic experts who focus on biomedical science and public health policies, including federal efforts to respond to the COVID-19 pandemic and prepare for future pandemics and public health emergencies. The fellow would have the opportunity to conduct policy research and participate in qualitative analytic projects to identify, describe, and disseminate information on best practices in COVID-19 vaccination and testing, especially in underserved communities and communities of color. The fellow may also be involved in efforts to identify broader lessons learned as part of the COVID-19 pandemic response. In addition to direct mentorship by the ASPE team, the fellow would have the opportunity to collaborate with a broad set of federal and non-federal stakeholders and would develop skills in policy and program analysis and research.
