Description *Applications will be reviewed on a rolling-basis.

CDC Office and Location: A research fellowship is available within the Division of Global Health Protection (DGHP) of the Center for Global Health (CGH) at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) located in Atlanta, Georgia.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) is one of the major operation components of the Department of Health and Human Services. CDC works to protect America from health, safety and security threats, both foreign and in the U.S. Whether diseases start at home or abroad, are chronic or acute, curable or preventable, human error or deliberate attack, CDC fights disease and supports communities and citizens to do the same.

Research Project: Throughout the course of this fellowship, the participant will participate in research projects and activities in the domains of strategy, partnerships, issues management, legislative affairs, policy development, and high level collaboration.

Learning Objectives: Under the guidance of a mentor, the participant will learn to research best practices related to Congress, partner advocacy, and policy analysis. The participant will also receive training and mentorship on policy analysis, performance measurement and evaluation, and implementation across a wide range of global health security issues.

Mentor(s): The mentor for this opportunity is Megan Williams (ftl0@cdc.gov). If you have questions about the nature of the research please contact the mentor(s).
