CDC Office and Location: A summer fellowship opportunity is currently available with the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH), at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) located in Cincinnati, Ohio.

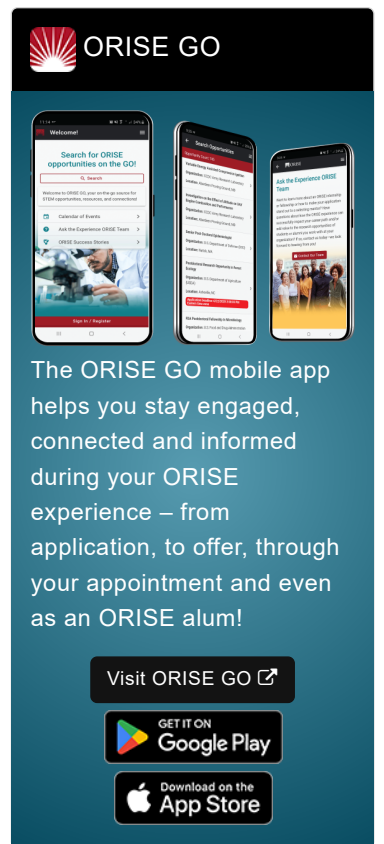

The National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health conducts research and makes recommendations to protect the safety and health of workers. National Institute for Occupational Safety & Health | NIOSH | CDC

Research Project: Total worker health and health communication are critical factors in worker safety and health. This project will provide a unique opportunity for the participant to receive hands-on training in understanding the total worker health needs of employees, developing appropriate messaging to address those needs, and engaging employees to maximize the reach and impact of the messaging. This project will focus on a pilot project within the Division of Science Integration, using an existing employee intranet site to test strategies for message development and delivery, and testing how successful those efforts are in engaging employees.

Learning Objectives: The participant will receive training in total worker health concepts, design of interventions, health messaging and methods of engaging employees, and will have the ability to try out what they have learned in the pilot project.

Mentor(s): The mentor for this opportunity is Christine Whittaker (cts6@cdc.gov). If you have questions about the nature of the research please contact the mentor(s).

Anticipated Appointment Start Date: May 2022. Start date is flexible and will depend on a variety of factors.
