An opportunity is available at the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA), Office of the Commissioner (OC), Office of Global Policy and Strategy (OGPS) located in Silver Spring, Maryland.

The Office of Global Policy and Strategy covers all regulated commodities that are imported into the United States from a policy perspective, and the program office is seeking two participants to perform global health and regulatory analysis on topics including:

1. Qualitative and quantitative analysis on how FDA/HHS can best leverage multilateral institutions such as the WHO, PAHO, OECD, ASEAN, and APEC to advance global public health priorities
2. In-depth analysis on FDA's regulatory programs and strategies on how domestic health policy priorities such as health equity and response to Long Covid could be amplified in the global arena
3. Identify areas where OGPS global work overlaps functional units, and develop policy positions and presentations that can be used across the organization
4. In-depth analysis of global pandemic preparedness and response issues

Expected learning objectives for the participant include:

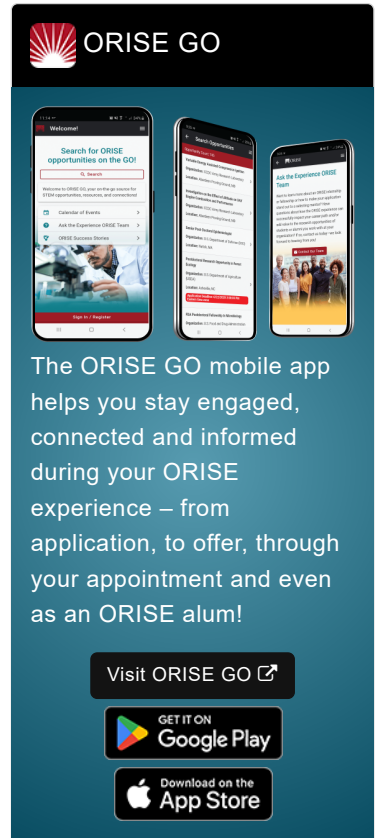

- Learn to develop public health policy in the global context
- Learn through a thorough analysis global regulatory best practices and guidelines
