CDC Office and Location: A research opportunity is available within the Emergency Response and Recovery Branch (ERRB) in the Center for Global Health (CGH) at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) located in Atlanta, Georgia.

The CDC is one of the major operation components of the Department of Health and Human Services. CDC works to protect America from health, safety and security threats, both foreign and in the U.S. Whether diseases start at home or abroad, are chronic or acute, curable or preventable, human error or deliberate attack, CDC fights disease and supports communities and citizens to do the same.

Research Project:

Learning Objectives: Under the guidance of a mentor, the participant will gain training and experience in the design, development, and evaluation of public health communication products and activities for CDC's Emergency Response and Recovery Branch (ERRB). This training will offer the opportunity to learn about and obtain hands-on experience in the following activities:

- Identify user needs, analyze and logically organize technical information, and transform complex bodies of information into professionally designed, engaging, and effective materials
- Collaborate with SME's at a high and strategic level and help design products that demonstrate CDC's role in humanitarian health, disease outbreak detection, and rapid response
- Synthesize data to write summary reports with actionable
