CDC Office and Location: A research opportunity is currently available with the Alzheimer's Disease Team in the Healthy Aging Branch (HAB), Division of Population Health (DPH), within the National Center for Chronic Disease Prevention and Health Promotion (NCCDPHP) at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) in Atlanta, Georgia.

The Alzheimer's Disease Team (cdc.gov/aging) conducts activities authorized under Congressionally-mandated Healthy Brain Initiative and Building our Largest Dementia (BOLD) Infrastructure Act related to Alzheimer's disease and other related dementias.

Research Project: The Alzheimer's Disease Team is seeking an ORISE Fellow to assist with public health efforts related to older adults, including but not limited to Alzheimer's Disease, the epidemiology of chronic conditions, relevant policies, health surveillance, and communication products. Through this fellowship, participants will train under the guidance of a mentor on scientific, programmatic, and communication activities related to a public health approach for Alzheimer's Disease.

Learning Objectives: Specifically, the Fellow will train under the mentorship of HAB scientific and programmatic staff to:

- Conduct reviews and identify existing gaps and opportunities in the published literature and existing data sources
- Conduct research to increase understanding of the risk and protective factors
- Analyze and synthesize data from multiple sources on organizational policies
- Propose, analyze, publish, and disseminate research including
