CDER Office/Lab and Location: A research opportunity is available in the Office of Testing and Research (OTR), Office of Pharmaceutical Quality (OPQ), Food and Drug Administration (FDA) located in St. Louis, Missouri. This is a collaborative research project in the Center for Drug Evaluation and Research (CDER). CDER performs an essential public health task by making sure that safe and effective drugs are available to improve the health of people in the United States. As part of the FDA, CDER regulates over-the-counter and prescription drugs, including biological therapeutics and generic drugs. This research covers more than just medicines.

Research Project: The project is to develop and validate LC-MS methods to identify, characterize, and quantify genotoxic impurities in selected pharmaceutical products.

Under the guidance of the mentor, the participant will be trained to develop and validate LC-MS method for pharmaceutical impurity identification, characterization and quantification. An opportunity to gain knowledge and experience in pharmaceutical development, application assessment and regulation through internal and external trainings, conferences, and involvement in the processes of solving real-world regulatory issues.

This program, administered by ORAU through its contract with the U.S. Department of Energy to manage the Oak Ridge Institute for Science and Education, was established through an interagency agreement between DOE and FDA. The initial appointment is for one year, but may be renewed upon recommendation of FDA contingent on the availability of funds. The participant will receive a monthly stipend commensurate with educational level and experience. Proof of health insurance is required for participation in this program. The appointment is full-time at FDA in the St. Louis,
