Application Deadline 1/4/2027 11:59:00 PM Eastern Time Zone

Description The U.S. Department of Energy's Office of Energy Dominance Financing (EDF) supports high-impact energy and manufacturing initiatives that advance U.S. energy security, affordability, grid reliability, and national competitiveness. EDF works closely with private-sector partners, other federal agencies, and key stakeholders to finance projects that strengthen America's energy foundation and support emerging technologies.

As an EDF intern, you will gain unparalleled professional development by engaging in large-scale loan evaluations for innovative energy projects, building expertise in financial modeling, due diligence, and credit risk analysis. This opportunity provides a unique opportunity to contribute to the national good by directly supporting the revitalization and innovation of the U.S. energy industry, enabling the deployment of energy technologies and fostering American economic prosperity.

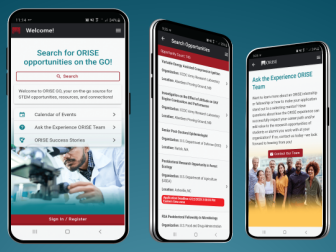

Over the span of ten weeks, EDF interns may participate in research, analysis, and program support across the following focus areas, gaining exposure to federal energy finance, public-private partnerships, and cross-agency collaboration.

- Energy generation and grid reliability projects
- Innovative energy technology initiatives
- Manufacturing and advanced transportation projects
- Tribal energy investment and partnership projects
- CO2 transportation and infrastructure projects
- Energy solutions that support U.S. leadership in artificial intelligence and other emerging technologies
