Description A fellowship opportunity is available in the Community Strategies Division in the Office of Disease Prevention and Health Promotion (ODPHP), and under the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Health (OASH), at the US Department of Health and Human Services (HHS).

OASH provides leadership to the nation on public health and science matters, and communicates on these subjects to the American people. OASH is a staff division in HHS that performs both policy and program roles and is led by the Assistant Secretary for Health (ASH), whose chief mission is promoting, protecting and improving the nation's health.

The selected individual will assist with the Healthy People initiative. Established in 1979, Healthy People provides science-based objectives with targets for improving the health of the nation. The fellow will work on all aspects of Healthy People, including implementation of the current decade's objectives (Healthy People 2020) and the development and launch of the next decade's objectives (Healthy People 2030). Activities may include:

- Collaborating with the ODPHP Community Strategies Division to manage Healthy People 2020's topic areas and Leading Health Indicators across the HHS and other federal agencies.
- Supporting activities to develop and launch Healthy People 2030, including producing regional meetings and conducting formative research (e.g., in-depth interviews, survey design, focus group facilitation).
- Planning, implementing, and evaluating promotional and outreach activities for Healthy People 2020 and the development of Healthy People 2030.
- Synthesizing, analyzing, and reporting of public comments on the Healthy People 2030 objectives.
- Reviewing, analyzing, and interpreting national disease prevention and health promotion data to support health policy recommendations.
- Assisting ODPHP Community Strategies Division in developing strategies for implementing the Healthy People 2020 objectives at the federal, state
