Description A fellowship opportunity is available with the Office of the Director, Division of Unintentional Injury Prevention (DUIP) within the National Center for Injury Prevention and Control (NCIPC) at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) in Atlanta, Georgia.

Under the guidance of a mentor, this opportunity offers the ability to work on high-priority, high-impact issues in unintentional injury prevention, including opioid/drug overdose prevention. The Division's strategy includes conducting surveillance and research; building state, local, and tribal capacity for prevention; supporting providers, health systems, and players in implementing evidence-based practices; partnering with public safety to enhance prevention; and empowering consumers to make safe choices.

This fellowship will offer the opportunity to learn about and obtain training in the following activities:

- research priorities and response to scientific policy concerns;
- research methodology, design, and implementation;
- scientific regulations pertaining to data collection and human subjects research;
- tracking national health objectives;
- best practices in scientific training;
- responding to policy and partnership requests; and
- reviewing scientific products for accuracy and consistency with CDC and HHS policy.
