Application Deadline 5/30/2019 3:00:00 PM Eastern Time Zone

Description A research opportunity is currently available with the Office of Policy, Partnerships, and Communication (OPPC), in the Division of Nutrition, Physical Activity, and Obesity (DNPAO) within the National Chronic Disease Prevention and Health Promotion (NCCDPHP) at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) in Atlanta, Georgia.

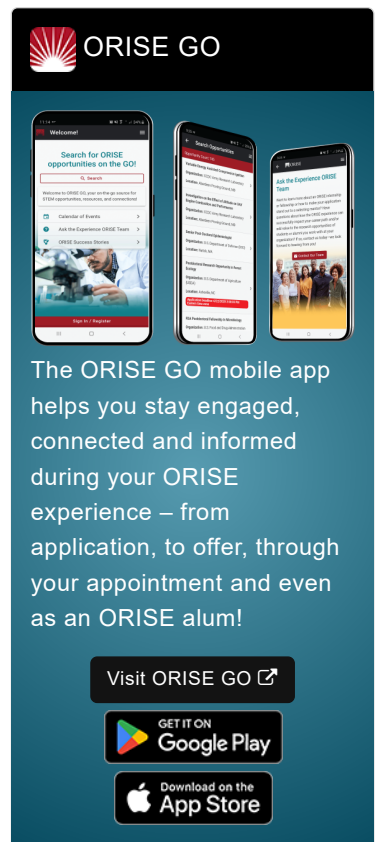

This project will provide experience in DNPAO's approach to promoting partnerships and strategies that help communicate about the successes of the division. The project involves training with a diverse group of public health professionals, including nutritionists, health educators, and lawyers.

Under the guidance of a mentor, the participant will have the opportunity to be involved in the following activities:

- Receive training to collect and analyze the different funding models and successes of DNPAO's Racial and Ethnic Approaches to Community Health (REACH) program so that DNPAO can better communicate the legacy of the program and its contributions to health equity
- Receive training to track and analyze internal and external requests through SharePoint, the forecasting portal, and daily announcements to ensure that leadership is aware of upcoming releases and can respond to immediate requests from NCCDPHP and CDC leadership
- Participate in team and division-wide meetings to identify opportunities to further promote and share the efforts of the division
- Attend a national meeting and/or site visit to learn about the latest science and practice related to nutrition and physical activity

Anticipated Appointment Start Date: June 17, 2019
